LADIES' DRESSING SACQUE.
Paris Pattern No. 3330
All Seams Allowed.

The dressing sacque is a garment which may be classed as absolutely necessary to the comfort of women. It is as negligible as a wrapper, but it does not look so. In our illustration we show an example which is very simple and also very pretty and easy to make. The front has a full vest, which meets the side sections near the center. These sides have no ornamentation of any kind. In the back there is a group of small tucks in the center and at the neck is a large collar, which was made of a handkerchief, the border forming a novel trimming. The sleeves are puffs and are of three-quarter length finished with a turn-back cuff. This garment may be made of lawn, batiste, gingham, organdy, foulard, or, in fact, any material which is at hand. If it is not possible to obtain a bordered handkerchief for the collar, plain material may be used and a row of insertion placed where the border would otherwise be. The pattern is in 7 sizes—32 to 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 bust requires 2 1/2 yards of material 36 inches wide.

Mrs. Harry Smith Berry to Visit Parents Here.

CUNO H. RUDOLPHS DEPART

After Visiting at Lake Sunapee, N. H., for Four Weeks They Will Motor Through White Mountains. Mrs. Henry Harris Barrell is Guest of Relatives in Danbury, Conn.

Mrs. Harry Smith Berry, of Nashville, Tenn., will arrive in Washington tomorrow for a few days' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Knox, of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Knox will then go to Atlantic City, accompanied by Mrs. Berry and their niece, Miss Nina Van Arsdale, who made her debut in society last winter. Mrs. Berry was a debutante the season before, and was one of the youngest of last season's brides. Her marriage to Mr. Berry took place on Shrove Tuesday, and was one of the largest and most fashionable of the season's affairs. Mr. Berry will be in camp with the Tennessee State troops, in which he is a major, during Mrs. Berry's absence with her parents and cousin.

The Hon. Lawrence Ughtred Kay-Shuttleworth, eldest son of Sir Ughtred James Kay-Shuttleworth, bart., of Gawthorpe Hall, County Lancaster, England, has arrived in this country and went at once to the summer embassy of Great Britain at Dublin, N. H., where Ambassador and Mrs. Elyse have been for some time. This new attaché of the embassy is a bachelor, twenty-three years old, and a brother of the Hon. Mrs. James, wife of Lieut. Col. Bernard James, military attaché of the embassy. Their sister, the Hon. Nina Kay-Shuttleworth, is well known in Washington society, having spent several winters here with her sister, and became an important factor in the younger set of diplomatic society.

Mrs. Bailey, wife of Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, with her two sons, Joseph W. Bailey, Jr., and Weldon Bailey, are spending the summer in Washington in their apartment in Stoneleigh Court. Senator Bailey has been at their home in Texas for some weeks.

Commissioner and Mrs. Cuno H. Rudolph left yesterday morning for Lake Sunapee, N. H., for a visit of four weeks. In August they will motor through the White Mountains, after which Mr. Rudolph will return home and Mrs. Rudolph will go back to Lake Sunapee for the remainder of the season.

Mrs. Angus Crawford, of San Antonio, who is spending the summer with Dr. Crawford at Charlottesville, Va., visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Y. Worthington, here last week.

Mrs. Barrell, wife of Commander Henry Harris Barrell, U. S. N., has gone to Danbury, Conn., where she will be the guest of relatives for a few days. Commander and Mrs. Barrell recently returned from a visit to Dr. Franklin Rogers, U. S. N., at Winchester, Va.

Mr. Thomas M. Sherman, son of the Vice President, has taken a villa in Great Barrington, Mass., for the season.

Mr. J. Ridgely Carter, American Minister at Bucharest, has given the yacht Caprice to his daughter, Lady Acheson, who was Miss Mildred Carter. The yacht was formerly owned by the Duke of Somerset. The new owner will entertain during Cowes week Lord and Lady Maitland, the latter formerly Miss Drexel, and other guests.

Miss Katherine Kohlstaad and Mr. Roger B. Shepard will be married July 27, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Kohlstaad, Chicago. The day selected for the wedding is the second anniversary of the marriage of Mrs. Kohlstaad's sister, Mrs. Potter Palmer, Jr. Mr. Shepard was graduated from Yale in 1908 and has since been associated with

She stood at the door of her little suburban home, looked across the green fields, and said a bit discontentedly to her visitor: "I would love to study bird life, but, instead, I have to give special food every two hours to this youngster," and her hand rested on the curly head of a two-year-old child by her side.

She was plainly dissatisfied with her lot. Her days and weeks and months passed in what seemed to her the doing of trivial, humble tasks, and she longed for what she thought were better things.

But this was work so trivial and humble compared with bird study, or flower study, or whatever study she might choose to take up merely as a pastime? True, it seemed monotonous and akin to drudgery. Doing mechanically the same tasks over again, day in and out, was certainly not so interesting the way she regarded them, not so full of color or life as studying the birds or flowers. But let her look ahead to the years. Through these very monotonous tasks the child at her side will grow 'till a healthy, happy girl, full of love for the mother who has so carefully watched and cared for her. Contrast what that girl will bring into the mother's life in the years to come with the results of bird study. Looking ahead thus to the fruit of one's labors there would be little question as to which to choose.

Study the subject, outside interests of any kind, are not to be decider for the busy mother. She should have all these she can. The home is better for it. But if it comes to a choice between these and the plain duties of her home life, she should take a long look ahead as to just Disciplined Officers to Be Shifted Elsewhere.

GEN. ELLIOTT IN CAPITAL

Commandant of Corps Will Issue Formal Orders Detaching Several Subordinates from Headquarters. Col. Lauchheimer Goes to Manila. Others Also Go to Philippines.

Formal orders will be issued within the next few days transferring from the headquarters of the Marine Corps in this city to new fields of duty the officers who were formally reprimanded last week by Acting Secretary of the Navy Winthrop.

Maj. Gen. George F. Elliott, commandant of the corps, arrived in Washington yesterday from East Gloucester, Mass., where he was spending his vacation.

Gen. Elliott was called back to Washington that he might issue the formal orders detaching several of his subordinates from their present duties at the Marine Corps headquarters. Col. Charles H. Lauchheimer, adjutant and inspector, is acting commandant, and is also one of the officers to be transferred, and Mr. Winthrop decided that it would be more advisable to have Gen. Elliott return to Washington to effect the changes.

Manila His New Post. Col. Lauchheimer will be sent to Manila. His duties as adjutant and inspector of the corps will be performed temporarily by Lieut. Col. Henry C. Haines, assistant adjutant and inspector. Col. Frank L. Denny, quartermaster, probably will be transferred to San Francisco. His duties will devolve upon Lieut. Col. Charles L. McCawley, assistant quartermaster. Col. Charles A. Doyen, commanding the Marine Barracks at Annapolis, another officer who was reprimanded, probably will be sent to the Philippines. It is likely that all of the officers who were reprimanded except Gen. Elliott will eventually be transferred.

The row at the Marine Corps headquarters will probably end in abolishing the present system of permanent details in the staff of that branch of the service. The present staff officers of the corps were scored by the court on the ground that they had served too long at the headquarters here.

FROM WOMAN'S POINT OF VIEW.

If you want to win the everlasting gratitude of men and women cease to show any curiosity concerning disfigurements on the face and body of afflicted persons. They are sensitive to a degree, and you can add greatly to their suffering by showing undue interest in them.

The other day an estimable woman traveled some miles in public conveyances to have an operation performed on her nose. The journey to the surgeon's office was not noteworthy, because the operation was to be inside the nose. Her return was torture, because her nose was swollen and bandaged, and her efforts to screen it with a small shawl drew all eyes in her direction.

It would have been kind to have looked in other directions, but apparently there was but one woman who realized it, and to her the victim unbefuddled herself; also, she traveled by cab a part of the distance because her nerves had been strained nearly to the limit. Another victim of nose trouble is having an annoying time on account of the blunt questions put to her by curious persons. She, too, is at the end of her patience, and very grateful to the few who tactfully ignore the fact that she is temporarily disfigured.

Incidentally, it is a bit of impertinence to set oneself above the physician who is in charge of a case. It is done every day by women who offer unsolicited advice to people who are not well. When asked, it is right and proper to recommend medicine, doctors, or treatment, and those who need any of the three will not be backward in asking for advice.

There are crippled women who appreciate the solitude of strangers when it takes the form of courteous assistance; there are others who resent it, and only the discerning person can distinguish between them. I have been sat upon once or twice so heavily that I should hesitate some before tendering assistance to those who do not seem to be well and strong. My last experience was with a crippled woman, whom I discovered later was a victim of tight shoes.

Of course, she was exasperated at the thought that her vanity might be on the point of discovery—the pain was enough to sour her temper—and when she limped into the car I thought only of her puckered brows, which evidenced pain, and offered her my seat. She declined it in snappy accents, and every body smiled—except me. They realized the truth, which I did not discover till she left the car.

BETTY BRADEN.

Peaches à l'Anglaise.

From Harper's Bazar.
Freeze soft one quart of vanilla cream, then beat in one pint of fresh peach pulp and the juice of two oranges; let stand two hours. Line parfait-glasses with thin slices of peaches and fill with the cream, then pour over all a thick, smooth, cooked strawberry sauce.

Another charming way of serving plain ice cream is to fill a mold with the frozen cream and bury it in ice and salt for three hours. Make a cold chocolate icing, rather thin, and as soon as the cream is removed from the mold, coat it thickly over the top and sides with the icing, and ornament it with chocolate-diced almonds.

MORNING CHIT-CHAT.

HOW often do you think before you speak? In other words, how often do you plan in your mind before your tongue begins to work just what you are going to say?

Not very often, I'll wager. If you are an average person, your tongue and brain probably work simultaneously, and as a consequence you seldom express yourself with absolute accuracy.

I met a woman the other day whose accuracy of expression, whose exact and measured use of words, whose perfect English, I at once marked.

And before I had talked with her long, I also remarked a queer little trick she had of not answering the instant I ceased speaking, but of remaining silent for a moment as if to arrange her answer.

"Why do you do that?" I asked, when I knew her well enough to do so.

"I'm arranging just what I want to say before I speak, just as I do when I write," she exclaimed.

Doubtless it would be pretty difficult for most of us to do that as a regular thing.

But don't you think it is a good scheme to try to follow when you are engaged in any rather important conversation?

Don't forget.

In large letters beside the living-room clock of one home in this city hangs that warning, and beneath it in smaller letters is written—

To wind the clock.

To feed the cat and bring her in at night.

To wrap up your shirts and collars Wednesday and put them on the stoop for the laundryman.

To lock the window over the porch.

and half a dozen similar "to's."

Another copy of this document is stuck into the corner of the man-of-the-house's mirror and another behind his pipe rack.

"I only put up one the first year," explained the little wife, whose idea these "don't forgets" are, "and when I came home it was gone, so I said it had been blown out of the window. I had my suspicions, but I didn't say anything. I just put up three the next year."

Rather a good scheme, don't you think?

An amusing little birthday gift for a child or even an older person is a collection of pennies—one, two, or three, or any number you care to procure—dated for each year of his life.

If you do it for any one who is over twenty you probably won't want to get more than one for each year, as pennies of the older dates are rather hard to procure.

Scour the coins with silver polish and present them in a little bag or purse and they will make a most amusing and original little gift.

And, besides the pleasure of giving them, I fancy you will also find more interest than you would think possible in the hunt for the proper dates.

RUTH CAMERON.
